Adaptive Web Design
Ioana-Gabriela Chelaru
Software Engineering, UBB

Assignment 1
Findings upon visiting teacher web pages

Computer Science Department

Dr. DARABANT Sergiu Adrian, Associate Professor

- the first page is pretty plan, but at least it's simple enough for the user to navigate through it

- the pages for each course are compact and full of information, small letters, would enjoy some type of menu, or sections for them

- really like the fact that I could find pretty easily each class and the basic informations for it

Dr. DIOSAN Laura, Professor

- pretty nice home page, appreciate the top menu

- don't like the fact that the "Teaching" section contains current classes, as well as past ones, some old projects, it should contain just the current classes, in my opinion

- found other relevant information for classes held this semester burried in some other section, making it hard to find

Dr. DRAGOS Radu, Lecturer Professor

- really like the simple design and the feel of it

- the "about" and "publications" sections are broken, i guess

- easy to navigate, nice experience for the user, would have like to be a little more consistent with the languages, it combines english and romanian in a confusing way

Mathematics Department

Dr. POPOVICI Nicolae, Professor

- no information found about the current courses, only their teams code, can only asume that all the material are there
- the design is not very pleasant for the user
- condensed information, small letters, every title for each project redirects the user to a new site, there's no information about them provided on the home page

Dr. PRECUP Radu, Professor

- primitive design, no menu to facilitate the navigation
- appreciate the fact that the course page is easy to find and all the information about it is nicely exposed

Dr. PINTEA Cornel, Associate Professor

- the home page is almost empty, all the font could be increased
- even though there's a menu, the fact that all the courses and their information is listed on the same page is pretty confusing and hard to navigate through
- appreciate the fact that both the syllabus and the timetable were linked for each course

Dr. PARAJDI Lorand, Assistant

- best design I've seen so far, user friendly
- pretty organised menu, everything can be easily found
- everything is consistent, from language and design, to font

Dr. PELEA Cosmin, Associate Professor

- pain design, although everything can be easily found on the home page
- all the courses and their information is placed on the same page, making it crowded and hard to navigate
- as seen on other websites, this one mixes the languages as well, not a pleasant experience

    In conclusion, after truly looking at the websites I visited, not just looking for the last course or the current assignment or maybe a teams code to enter the class as I used to, I can honestly say I would enjoy very much if they all used the same format or, even more, the same template. I think that would make the experience better for the user, it would be easier to navigate and would give the illusion of professionalism, since these are pages related to the same university.